General Information About the PLACE and Test Preparation
INTRODUCTION

This section includes a list of the test objectives, immediately followed by a set of practice multiple-choice questions. For test areas that include a performance assessment (Basic Skills, all languages other than English, Special Education Specialist: Visually Impaired), one or more practice performance assignments (as applicable) will also be included.

TEST OBJECTIVES. As noted earlier, the test objectives are broad, conceptual statements that reflect the knowledge, skills, and understanding an entry-level educator needs to teach effectively in a Colorado classroom. The list of test objectives represents the only source of information about what a specific test will cover.

PRACTICE MULTIPLE-CHOICE QUESTIONS. The practice multiple-choice questions included in this section are designed to give you an introduction to the nature of the questions included on the PLACE test. The practice questions represent the various types of multiple-choice questions you may expect to see on an actual test; however, they are not designed to provide diagnostic information to help you identify specific areas of individual strengths and weaknesses or to predict your performance on the test as a whole.

When you answer the practice multiple-choice questions, you may wish to use the answer key to check your answers. To help you identify how the test objectives are measured, the objective statement to which each multiple-choice question corresponds is listed in the answer key. When you are finished with the practice questions, you may wish to go back and review the entire list of test objectives and descriptive statements for your test area.
OBJECTIVES

TEST FIELD 07: ENGLISH

Literature

Includes identifying standard English usage, sentence structure, punctuation, capitalization, and spelling; and applying strategies for proofreading.

Understand strategies for accessing, managing, and utilizing information.
Includes identifying features of various information resources (e.g., print, interview, video, Internet); recognizing resources for managing text (e.g., spellcheckers, word-processing programs) and their application; and using available technologies to conduct research and produce a well-documented product.
ORAL COMMUNICATION

Understand strategies for communicating for different purposes and audiences in a variety of forms.
Includes distinguishing among styles of language (e.g., technical, informal) appropriate for various purposes and audiences; identifying principles and characteristics of different speaking styles (e.g., extemporaneous, debate); recognizing the influence of context on communication; defining different purposes for listening; and analyzing the distinction between verbal and nonverbal communication.

Understand the elements of the oral communication process.
Includes analyzing techniques to organize information; analyzing techniques for making presentations to small and large groups; analyzing techniques for interacting in small and large groups; and identifying ways to adapt the speaking process based on feedback.

Understand the elements of effective communication.
Includes analyzing elements of effective listening and speaking in conversation (e.g., using appropriate language, providing verbal and nonverbal responses to the speaker); recognizing the impact of clarity of thought and speech; identifying various vocal strategies (e.g., enunciation, pauses) and their effect on meaning; and identifying characteristics of effective listening behavior.

Understand the complementary nature of listening and speaking.
Includes analyzing the effects of environmental and circumstantial factors on a listener’s ability to understand a spoken message; analyzing the role of critical-thinking skills in effective listening and speaking; and recognizing the roles of body language, gestures, voice, and intonation when communicating.

VISUAL COMMUNICATION AND INFORMATION PROCESSING

Understand the active and constructive nature of viewing and visually representing information.
Includes identifying elements of visual language (e.g., symbols, shapes, composition); analyzing the contextual importance of cultural, social, economic, and historical factors to visual communication; and recognizing the role of viewers’ prior experiences in their understanding of visual images.

Understand the influence of the mode of representation on the content of communication.
Includes identifying forms of visual communication (e.g., television, theatre, film) and their characteristics; recognizing alternative ways to communicate information (e.g., charts, graphs, models); and evaluating the selection of a particular mode of visual communication for a given purpose and audience.

Understand techniques for the critical evaluation of information, media, and technology.
Includes recognizing purposes (e.g., to entertain, persuade, inform) of media messages; recognizing the influence of propaganda techniques (e.g., bandwagon, glittering generality, testimonial); identifying strategies for analyzing media messages based on various factors (e.g., content, nonverbal cues, objectivity); and recognizing the mutual reinforcement of combined media (e.g., picture to clarify print, music to enhance visual images).

Understand the changing nature of information technology resources for accessing, selecting, and applying information.
Includes evaluating the impact of technological developments on the means and methods of personal and mass communication.
1. Read the poem below, "Sowing Season. Evening" by Victor Hugo; then answer the question that follows.

It is the moment of twilight.
Seated under a portal, I admire
This end of day illuminating
The last hours of labor.

In the fields bathed by night,
Deeply moved, I gaze on the rags
Of an old man scattering fistfuls
Of future harvest in the furrows.

Tall, his dark silhouette
Towers above the deep ploughing.
The fruitfulness of fleeing days
Forms visibly his belief.

He walks along the endless plain,
Going, coming, casting seeds afar,
Opens his hand once more and begins afresh,
And, a hidden witness, I meditate

While unfolding its veils
The shadow where sound mixes in
Seems to stretch up to the very stars
The august gesture of his sowing.

This poem illustrates most clearly which aspect of Romanticism?

A. the elevation of emotion over reason

B. the preoccupation with the heroic figure

C. the belief in the transcendental power of nature

D. the preference for the exotic and remote
2. Read the excerpt below from The House on Mango Street by Sandra Cisneros; then answer the question that follows.

I want a house on a hill like the ones with the gardens where Papa works. We go on Sundays, Papa's day off. I used to go. I don't anymore. You don't like to go out with us, Papa says. Getting too old? Getting too stuck-up, says Nenny. I don't tell them I am ashamed—all of us staring out the window like the hungry. I am tired of looking at what we can't have. When we win the lottery . . . Mama begins, and then I stop listening.

People who live on hills sleep so close to the stars they forget those of us who live too much on earth. They don't look down at all except to be content to live on hills. They have nothing to do with last week's garbage or fear of rats. Night comes. Nothing wakes them but the wind.

One day I'll own my own house, but I won't forget who I am or where I came from. Passing bums will ask, Can I come in? I'll offer them the attic, ask them to stay, because I know how it is to be without a house.

Some days after dinner, guests and I will sit in front of a fire. Floorboards will squeak upstairs. The attic grumble.

Rats? they'll ask.

Bums, I'll say, and I'll be happy.

In this excerpt, Cisneros primarily explores which of the following issues related to the growth and development of young people?

A. the desire to rebel against moral conventions

B. the need to feel accepted by one's peers

C. the determination to remedy social injustice

   B. folk tales
   C. comic dramas
   D. autobiographies

4. When skimming and scanning an informative text to find a sequence of steps, it is most useful to look for transition cues such as:
   A. because; since.
   B. if; unless.
   C. although; while.
   D. initially; next.

5. Which of the following questions would be most useful to a reader when attempting to determine the position of a writer of a controversial article?
   A. What facts does the author emphasize in the article?
   B. Has the author structured the article coherently?
   C. What is the author's reputation as a writer?
   D. How many authorities does the writer cite in the article?

6. It is most important to include which of the following when writing a persuasion paper directed to a hostile audience?
   A. acknowledgment of the opposition's side of the issue
   B. quotations from opponents of the readers' views
   C. emotional language to bolster the argument
   D. sophisticated language to display scholarship

7. Peer revision aids writers in the composing process primarily by:
   A. allowing for time between writing steps.
   B. providing insight into how the text communicates to others.
   C. exposing writers to a broad variety of styles and genres.
   D. providing an opportunity for writers to socialize and see each other's work.
8. A city's mayor has recently delivered a speech to a conference of governmental leaders and has been asked to deliver it again at a meeting of a local service organization. Which of the following changes in the speech would be most important for the mayor to make?

A. Add anecdotes about other speakers to encourage rapport with listeners.
B. Incorporate visual aids that reinforce important points.
C. Explain technical concepts and terms on a more general level.
D. Discard material that does not have a direct bearing on local politics.

9. Which of the following critical-thinking skills is likely to be most helpful to an individual who is listening to a persuasive speech?

A. Formulating a counterargument to each of the main ideas
B. Identifying contradictions and fallacies of reasoning
C. Evaluating the level of the speaker's vocabulary and syntax
D. Comparing the speech to other speeches heard previously

10. The symbolism of a visual image from one culture may be ambiguous or may not be apparent to an individual from a different culture. Which of the following statements best explains this observation?

A. The way a person visually scans an image is dependent on the characteristics of his or her written language.
B. The physical perception of visual elements, such as shapes and tones, is influenced by cultural factors.
C. The interpretation of a symbol is the result of a highly individualized construction of meaning by the viewer.
